A BOOK OF 2007 - 2008 LICK LIFE

---

Look on the cover to solve these riddles!

I spy a flying saucer, two needles, a lock,
A slightly smelly sandal and a little clock;
Fuzzy dice, a pom-pom, a library card,
Seventeen tigers, and a trusty head guard.

I spy notes to stick and notes to play,
Sticks that rock, and a book to plan the day;
"Puss 'n Boots," juice, a pad for a knee,
A clamp, two compasses, and a key.

I spy the headmaster, a seahorse, a four-eyed cat,
Three paw prints, and a fish that's flat;
Six pearly whites from a menacing smile,
Two sneakers, two beakers, or is one a vial?

I spy a caliper, a ball of twine,
A shiny new drill bit, a tartan design;
Fifty cents, nine brushes, seven balls to throw,
Two blocks, and a mug for your morning joe.

I spy the paper which gives us the news,
A plastic man who lives to foos;
A pair of glasses to keep cool on the sands,
A head, a heart, and the gloves for two hands.

This year's book is full of rhymes
To keep us in touch with the best of our times;
We hope you enjoy it and are sure you will,
So sit back, relax, and get your fill!

Headmaster's Address

Dr. Al Adams

Dear Class of 2008,

As my mind's eye gazes back over your four years at Lick, it spies each of you, individually, and all of you, collectively, as both shapers and "shapees" of Lick's one-of-a-kind culture. I spy you living and breathing all dimensions of Lick's head, heart, hands philosophy – being fully engaged in the many and varied academic disciplines, the technical, visual and performing arts, as well as putting your foot in the circle of Tiger athletics. I also spy your determination to measure yourself by Lick's ultimate measuring stick – the extent to which you have reached graduation brimming with the capacity and the commitment to make the world a better place.

Looking farther back, I spy you entering as ninth graders from all kinds of cultural backgrounds and from over fifty different public, parochial and independent middle schools. I spy you reaching out to one another and caring about, and for, each other for the next four years. And, I spy each of you learning and growing in your own ways, charting your own personal course through Lick and designing a particular road, with your name on it, as you continue your life's journey.

And, as I gaze into my crystal ball, I spy all of you, first and foremost, being good and compassionate people, as well as responsible citizens and members of your adult communities. This has been true of Lick graduates for over a century, and the Class of 2008 will surely carry this proud tradition forward in thoughtful and uplifting ways.

As hard as it may be for you to imagine, I also spy you returning to Lick for your fifth, your tenth, your twentieth and, in the year 2058, your fiftieth reunions! The really beautiful aspect of this image is that many of the friendships you have developed over the past four years will endure for a lifetime. This, of course, is most likely to happen if you commit yourself to nurturing these relationships over the years by making the time to stay connected.

On behalf of our faculty and staff who have poured their professional lives into mentoring you and caring for you, I wish you robust health, happiness and fulfillment. Thanks for having brought your own, best selves, to Ocean Avenue throughout your L-W years!

With much love,
Al Adams

Teacher Dedication

Ms. Von Breton

There are certain things that make the Lick experience truly unique: the shops, the gourmet cafeteria food, the ridiculously long cheer. However, there is one member of the Lick community whose enthusiasm is not only infectious but impossible to ignore. When you walk past Robin in the hallway, whether you have had her for three straight semesters or have never seen her in your life, she will flash you a smile and say hello. Every conversation with her ends in a firm handshake, and if you are lucky, a bow of admiration.

In her English classes, she inspires creativity and zeal with every assignment, while reinforcing the importance of analytical thinking. She dishes out story after story, often accompanied by some sort of expressive reenactment – she has been known to gallop during discussions of Shakespeare. Robin encourages her students to read aloud with passion and it is her enormous excitement about teaching that we love best. It is not uncommon for her to stay up very late preparing material for her class later that day, or to organize a group phone call to a member of the class who is out sick. Robin gets the best from her students because she cares so much, frequently reminding them just how brilliant they are. Her love for students is unmistakable and she will never say a negative thing. Everyone would like a special teacher whom they will always remember long after they leave school. For many students at Lick, Robin is that teacher.

The Class of 2008 will miss you!

"I vagabond, maybe, but one who is resigned to revolving on the same spot like my companions and brethren. It is true that departures sadden and exhilarate me, and whatever I pass through—new countries, skies pure or cloudy, seas under rain the color of a grey pearl—something of myself catches on it and clings so passionately that I feel as though I were leaving behind me a thousand little phantoms in my image, rocked on the waves, cradled in the leaves, scattered among the clouds. But does not last a little phantom, more like me than any of the others, remain sitting in my chimney corner, lost in a dream and as good as gold as it bends over a book which it forgets to open?"

My answer is bring them

The path of the righteous man is beset on all sides by the iniquities of the selfish and the tyranny of evil men. Blessed is he, who in the name of charity and good will, shepherds the weak through the valley of darkness; for he is truly his brother's keeper and the finder of lost children. And I will strike down upon thee with great vengeance and furious anger those who would attempt to poison and destroy my brothers. And you will know my name is the Lord when I lay my vengeance upon thee.

Lending a Hand in the Yucatán

by Chris Khatami, of

I didn't know what to expect when I decided to go to Xpujil, Campeche, a small town in the Yucatán peninsula of Mexico, over the summer. I had never volunteered abroad before, or volunteered away from home for longer than a week. I was in Xpujil for three weeks and I was there to make a difference.

The Yucatán, although part of Mexico, is culturally separated. This flat jungle region is home to many ancient Maya cities and is still populated by a majority of mixed and full Maya Indians. The Yucatán is famous for its Caribbean coast, home to Cancun and other major tourist destinations.

Like most towns in the Yucatán, Xpujil is rural and located deep in the southeastern jungles of the state of Campeche. The people of Yucatán and Xpujil suffer from some of the same problems: poverty, lack of education, political corruption, substandard medical facilities, poor farming conditions and water shortages. I went to Xpujil to work with a missionary, Todd Lokes, who had a clinic, controllable malaria, and a few other ailments with his church, but I met him five years before and knew that he was doing good work. I worked on community projects that included experimental farming techniques, house construction, planting trees and harvesting leeches. All varieties planting seeds and fertilizing.

For fun Todd and his family took me to the city of Chetumal to swim and see Harry Potter. I visited exquisite Maya ruins that were once lost to the jungle. I left with new friends and great memories. However, the greatest gift was the knowledge that it is not hard to help this land.

There are plenty of ways to get involved. The most obvious is to travel and aid its tourism based economy. Instead, explore the less fortuitous aid organizations in the region with volunteers. The majority of these groups helping the local endangered

Spill Leaves Volunteers Awash

by Chris Khatami '08

On Wednesday November 7, 58,000 gallons of bunker oil were poured into the San Francisco Bay after the Cosco Busan container ship crashed into the Bay Bridge. The oil has traveled as far north as Point Reyes, as far south as Pacifica and is heading east into the Farallones Marine Sanctuary. This has already been incredibly devastating to local environments and the animals that live in them, especially birds.

The organizations cleaning up the spill need help from volunteers, but hundreds of eager people can't are unable to participate because they lack training involving hazardous material and waste. This is a quandary in the Lick-Wilcoxing community. Many students want to lead a helping hand to clean up this tragedy, but can't.

Trained volunteers clean up toxic oil.

are duty-bound volunteers to record data, including the number of live and dead animals, the number of eggs, which and the amount of litter, tar and oil that washes up from beaches throughout the year. This information is used for baseline data so when a catastrophe occurs, there will be ample knowledge about what the environments were like. Beach Watch volunteers are also able to give hands-on aid during times of crisis.

One can help by staying informed, donating money and alerting the appropriate authorities if oil or oiled animals are noticed. However, untrained people should not attempt to trap them.

The purpose of the Paper Cub came from our mission statement, which was to strive for more current news, appealing visuals, and more frequent, shorter issues. Leo Warsaw-Cadozo was found yesterday after he contacted the authorities, he claimed he “got a cold” however, his lengthy disappearance has led some to believe he was kidnapped and forced to eat eight pounds of rice. His escape was made possible by the help of a sympathetic monkey who led him to safety.

She was elusive. She was today.
 She was tomorrow. She was the faintest scent of a cactus flower,

 We did not know what to do
